Introduction

This is Part 1 of the story! Please tell me if I should do a second part and please tell me what you think the thought is!

Chapter 1

She wrote bye at the end of the letter. Just bye. I was slightly confused at first until I realised what this meant. She never wrote "See you soon" or "See you later baby" like usual. She just wrote bye. Did she not want to see me anymore? After all of our time together... how was this possible? Did I live too far away? Was it because of her dad? Was it because of the lie?

I thought for a second until a thought came to me. A thought that will change my life forever...

Chapter 1

I thought about my decision. Was I really going to do it just to make her love me? Was it really worth it? I sighed. It was my only option. I looked at the last letter she had sent me once again. What could that mean? Did she really find out? Really? She loves me so much so I guess there was only one thing that I could do. I spoke to my doctor and he told me everything I needed to know. Now I was ready. Well, almost. I needed to tell her in person what was going on. Well, not the whole lie but part of it. How was I meant to tell her? She lives all the way in Canada and she doesn't even have a phone! Maybe I could try sending her another letter. Or even... I knew it. I had to go to her and meet her in person. I booked my ticket. I was going to fly to Canada to meet her on the 12th of December...
