Introduction

A story about a girl who loved

Chapter 1

When I met you...

We were young... Playing out in the forest. Years. Went. On. We grew apart.... Same school in Middle school my heart flutters when I see you! Oh yeah... Green eyes, shaggy hair, perfect smile ?... And then high-school came you dated another girl I felt shame when you smiled at me in the hall you gave me your pity felt like ripping off a band-aid! Senior year of high-school I was walking home from school I crossed the street... and then it. Hit. Me. Car crash somebody pushed me out of the way! It was you? Three months later you wake up from a coma your green eyes are shimmering. Tests and therapies... I went over to your house with a gift. You opened the door... You smiled at me that perfect smile. You were perfect. Three years later we are married we have a baby girl with green eyes a perfect nose and delicate hands... We have grown old... our girl is all grown up we have two sons who are 31 a daughter who is 35... We have grand children... One year later corona virus hits your infected... A couple years later its 2025 now I sit by your grave and look up at the sun and sing, The years went bye... A lot has happened since you left, If only you where here I still dream about your perfect smile...?
