The Story Of Tracy Beaker

My name is Tracy Beaker

I am 10 years and 2 months old.

My birthday is on 8 May. It's not fair, because that dopey Peter Ingham has his birthday then too, so we just got the one cake between us. And had to hold the knife to cut the cake together. Which meant we only had half a wish each. Wishing is for babies anyway. They don't come true.

I was born at some hospital somewhere. I looked cute but I bet I yelled a lot.

Introduction

This is the next part of the story of Tracy beaker by Jacqueline Wilson. If you have not already read part 1 before reading this.

Chapter 1

I am CM's tall. I don't know. I've tried measuring with a ruler but it keeps wobbling about and I can't reach it properly. I don't want the other children to help me. This is my private book.

I weigh KGS. I don't know that either. Jenny has got scales in her bathroom but their stones and pounds. I don't weigh any of them. I'm a little titch.

My eyes are Black and Witchy. I quite fancy being a witch. I'd make up all these incredibly evil spells and wave my wand and ZAP Louise's golden curls would fall out and, and I have lots of zaps in my head but they wouldn't fit in the page.

Part 3

Chapter 1

My hair is Fair and very long and curly I am telling fibs. It's dark and difficult and it sticks up in all the wrong places.

My skin is Spotty when I eat lots of sweets.

I started this book on I don't know. Who cares what the date is? You always have to put the date at school. I got fed up and put 2091 in my daybook and wrote about all these rockets and spaceships and monsters legging it down from Mars to eat us all up as if we'd whizzed 100 years into the future. Miss Brown didn't get half narked.

My lucky number is 7. So why didn't I get fostered by a rich family when I was seven?
