Introduction

About my past...

Chapter 1

You're just a little girl too young to understand why mommy is not in your life You're just a little girl
why when you visited mommy she yelled and hit you and why didn't she stop?
didn't she see you were scared?
You're just a little girl
why you have to take medicine and why you have to be sent away to someplace for a while You're just a little girl
why your stepmom hurts you, too, just like mommy did and why neither can love you like a mother should?
why the kids at school don't like your voice and think you're weird it's not like you had a choice

But now you're a teen and you're old enough to understand that your parents are divorced Now you're a teen
that your mom is not a good person and that's how come father took you away

you have something called Autism, and back then you were too much for a father to handle Now you're a teen
that sometimes mom gets mad and she hurts you but does that justify her actions?
nobody cares if you didn't have a choice and all you want is to be normal they will still put you down because they can't see that little girl

They cannot see that little girl being thrown against the wall head spinning, she can't feel the pain and cannot remember how it felt only how she got it
They cannot see that little girl listening to mom and father argue about her and they cannot see when she wonders why it's always her
being screamed at getting things thrown at her and she doesn't know what to do And now that she's a teen they still don't see her they still make her cry in math class or laugh when she says anything
she's realized they don't see her and decided it doesn't matter.
