Introduction

This is a poem about mental illness but feel free to interpret it however you like. It's a bit of a weird poem but I believe poetry does not have any rules or limits!

Chapter 1

Wistful winds wander around
Grieving grass make no sound
Broken buckets kicking away
Tearful time, a tragic display

Broken-hearted people, broken-hearted lands
Every word is lethal, no one understands

Doleful, diseased victims gather
Brainless bats continue to blather
Forlorn figures fake a smile
Crestfallen creases stay a while

Broken-hearted people, broken-hearted lands
Every word is lethal, no one understands

Shamefully shunning our words
Twisted torture comes in herds
Serene silence focuses now
Harmonious hush, my final bow

Broken-hearted people, broken-hearted lands
Every word is lethal, no one understands
